

Total Employee

275

Total Overtime
Hours

1050

Total Resigned
Employee

18

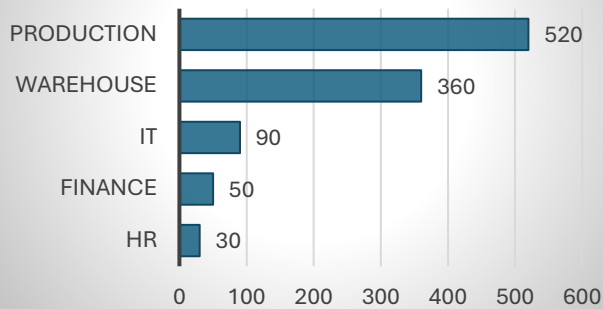

Total New Hire

13

Average Attendance

95,2

Total Overtime Department

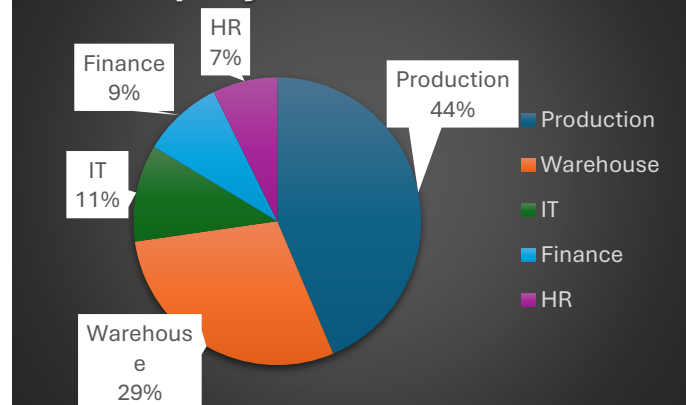

Average Attendance Department

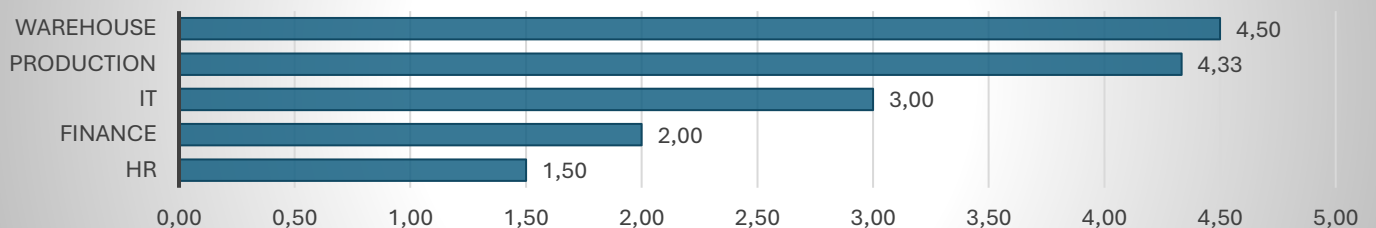

Resignation Rate (Point)

Employee Distribution

Overtime Rate Per Employee

I will show point by point what's matter after seeing data overall again and again like it's our problem weekly and monthly.

- attendance and overtime matter :

production and warehouse the lower but higher, I call this top tier of our kingdom.

why??? because of attendance low, will impact to production target right?

and overtime is boom, this two department is high. and this make us our cost problem.

- point of resignation rate both dept prod and warehouse also high,

perhaps for other dept they have backup each other, I know every dept is important, support each other. But, for this point prod and warehouse, the resignation rate have a big different, it half from other dept. why this matter? senior skill and junior skill will have big different, senior employee will more effisient, because they know the rule, the flow and how machine work. I don't blame about new hire, is good too, but We have some time to transfer every knowledge that we for the mechanism.

I'm not gonna lie, new hire will be expert as senior, just we have some time for everything going through.

are we need training for new hire? maybe yes or no. it depend on the condition of workplace.

reducing production maybe, but not to high I hope, because our new hire is not high as resignation it will have an impact of production.

I will not talk about how machine work (when downtime, when run) that's all on every dept control. You have head in every dept right? I just need your data about how you team work? control them for better result.

For me, because data it show like this. I will recommend you about reschedule your shift team, place more senior in a shift (senior have more than junior).

control their overtime, everybody have a limit even they need more income but their health more important.

specially for Mr. CEO

one thing really matter about this meeting today, because we talk about the cost that company have to pay.

- overtime is matter because maybe some senior teach their junior how bout mechanism and that take some time. for next month it will not anymore if the new hire work as good as we hope.

let see in the next month.